The Ontario Chapter of the AATSP (AATSP-ON) invites you to participate in its annual conference, hosted this year by the Department of Spanish and Portuguese of the University of Toronto, on Friday, November 8 and Saturday, November 9, 2019. This year’s program will be structured primarily but not exclusively around discussions that seek to expand and question traditional categories that have historically defined techniques and strategies in second language teaching. Public conversations/discourse around cultural appropriation, identity politics and citizenship force us to reconsider our practices in the classroom and rethink the cultural significance of second language teaching and acquisition, and how they are affected by technological shifts in not only how classes are conceived and taught but also the exposure that learners get to their target language (blended learning, social and digital media, research in situ, work terms).

In keeping with the AATSP 101st annual conference, the topics of our chapter’s conference include (but are not limited to) innovative curriculum, assessments and credentials, languages and the professions, languages and communities, languages and humane education, heritage language instruction and learning, and advocating for Spanish and Portuguese. In addition to dedicating sessions to these topics, thematic sessions on Research and Criticism, and Linguistics and Didactics of ELE and PLE, will also feature on the program.

Professors, researchers, teachers, graduate students and the general public are welcome to present papers or workshops in English, French, Portuguese or Spanish. Presentations (20 minutes; 7/8 pages, Times 12, double-spaced) and workshops (30 minutes) will focus on the topics outlined below.
